

KYLE DILLINGHAM

Oklahoma-native Kyle Dillingham first picked up the violin when he was nine, and eight years later while still in High School, he gave two featured performances at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville. Dillingham has performed with music legends like Roy Clark and Hank Thompson, and has represented America internationally in 37 countries, playing for countless diplomats and government leaders, rightfully earning him the title of “Oklahoma’s Musical Ambassador.”

He received his bachelor’s degree in instrumental music performance from Oklahoma City University, and is now managed by legendary music impresario Jim Halsey, who has guided the careers of many great performers including Roy Clark, The Oak Ridge Boys and James Brown.

On stage, Dillingham performs a mix of his signature originals, classic covers, and fiddling favorites that are sure to have audiences on their feet with his energetic and passionate style.
