

JANA JAE

The First Lady of Country Fiddle

Whether Jana Jae is taking part in a bravura performance of Bach's Double Concerto For Two Violins or bringing a country fair crowd to it feet with a sizzling rendition of "Orange Blossom Special," she's the kind of performer that people don't forget.

Jana Jae taught music during her early career in music until she felt inspired to take her unique blend of music on the road. Jana and her trademark blue fiddle soon took the world of country music by storm. Buck Owens was one of the first big names to recognize her talent and hired her as the first female member of his "Buckaroos" band, and she was part of the regular team of performers on the popular television show, "Hee Haw." She won national credos as an acclaimed fiddler, and has appeared with country greats such as Roy Clark, Chet Atkins, The Oak Ridge Boys and Ricky Skaggs.

Jana Jae has built a solid solo career, drawing upon her diverse musical background and talents performing worldwide. Her one-of-a-kind style blends country fiddling, western swing, and the classics, producing thrilling performances and critical acclaim.

A consummate performer, Jana Jae's pure voice, showmanship and natural communication with any audience combine for a dynamite concert. Jana has performed with the greats in the business, but she is best on her own with her complete touring group of talented musicians. Their special talents have enriched the world of music, bringing music lovers of all types to enjoy their diverse repertoire ranging from the classics to down home showstoppers.

Appeared and performed on over 100 episodes of HEE HAW and is well-known for her blue fiddle!
